During the Sixties when the population was fifty five million we were told it was too many and to have more than two children was a social sin. Now it's seventy and that number is not made up of two child family immigrants. The housing crisis is a creation of our unseen rulers, as a collapse in the housing market may well be when all we home owning baby boomers die off. Not content with this the same people wish to create a food crisis by concreting every green space and driving smaller farmers off the land by punitive inheritance taxes. When they get their war with Russia there will be no more digging for victory.
