Here we are again. Thought we had put this one to rest. The main objections are: 1 The plans are quite blizzard. Taking both sides of the banking to infill. Will the properties in either side withstand any subsidence as they were built in the 1930s? The piledriving may cause that. 2 There are mine shafts. What about the noise and vibrations for the locals living near by? 3 There may be not as heavy traffic as the original plans however you don't have to be a genius to see how devastating the problems we have in walkeylane already are. Long lines of traffic not only the noise but the fumes from idling cars queuing. The new dwellings will only add to the problem. 4 Sure it there is land out of time to build on? It would be insane to permanently block out roads. We need to do the opposite and find ways of relieving the traffic. Maybe a bypass. However some bright spark at the council sold the land to Morrison's instead of the plans for a bypass going ahead. So on the grounds listed above I strongly object to the proposal going ahead.
