Subject: Public consultation regarding proposed development on railway cutting Horton Street/Brunswick Street

Good Afternoon

I'm writing in regards to proposed planning application on the old railway cutting on Horton Street/Brunswick Street/Walkley Terrace. The developer has arranged the public consultation at barely a weeks notice just before Christmas and at a time that I should imagine is inconvenient for many people. It gives the message out that the developer has no real intention of meeting with local residents/public and arranging the meeting for the time they have is so they can tick a box to keep the council happy and have the least interaction as possible with local residents/public.

I was hoping to attend but last year and they attend school out of area which means I have to leave home at 2.45 and then with the return trip home having to pass 4 other schools with the associated traffic at each and then hitting the traffic in Heckmondwike I don't get back until 4.30. Surely if they were a reputable developer who wanted to liaise with the local residents/public and give us a fair chance to air our concerns then they would extend the meeting or hold it on an evening and not when most people are at work or when people have to do the school run.

Kind regards
