Objections to this proposal seem to be emotive and illogical. It is possible to understand the emotional attachment some may have to a former school combined with the fact it is a listed building, but I fully support the proposed demolition and redevelopment as house due to the fact that, without this, the buildings will simply decay and collapse. This path brings with it the problems any derelict building may have - becoming a magnet for antisocial behaviour, turning into more of an eyesore and ultimately presenting a significant physical risk to those in the vicinity. The buildings being left in their current state, on the path to decay, benefits nobody. Their demolition and subsequent redevelopment of the area benefits the area in terms of visual appearance, traffic access, general safety and development of the local community.
