

A large, leafless tree with a complex network of branches dominates the upper half of the image. A red arrow points to a specific branch on the left side of the tree. The tree is situated behind a stone wall and a wooden fence. In the background, a road leads towards a hillside with houses under a clear blue sky.

Where the arrow points, we have been advised to cut the branch at the growing point in order for the tree to grow back to its original condition.

