This is a building of major historic importance. Not just locally but nationally too. It was the scene of meetings of local Luddites, where men swore oaths to protect their trades and to stop people in the area from starving to death due to industrialisation lowering peoples wages. The pub where men gathered before the famous attack on Cartwrights mill at Rawfolds. It is also close to Peep Green, another site of historic importance. This is trade union history. Please protect it and conserve this building for future generations
