I feel that Granny Lane is one of the last places in Mirfield that has true original buildings and gardens. No other houses on the street has extensions and this one is far too big for the location with both sides of the building being right up to the boundary lines of the other properties either side. It's bad enough they have paved over the front garden to park there cars. I am also concerned how they are going to build it without invading onto other peoples properties and beautiful well maintain gardens at the front of the houses.
