The wall in which the applicant wishes to part demolish was obviously built along with the houses it surrounds - around 100 years ago - and i feel adds character to them, to destroy this for the sake of creating a car space seems criminal, especially as this is a conservation area and therefore we need to preserve the appearance of this quaint village street. As mentioned in a previous comment, wheelie bins are lined up against the wall for collection as this is the only available place for them, it seems unfair to obstruct other neighbouring properties or to take up valuable roadside parking spaces with these bins if permission is given to demolish the wall.
