There are enough housing developments on green belt areas in our area. There are unsustainability issues with the roads, doctors and schooling in these areas. The developers put in planning requests for 299 houses, to knowing full well 1500 is the full plan, to avoid providing any services. As as a council it is your civic duty to ensure that your urban town/brownfield areas are not allowed to become eyesores and developing these would prevent this. The building of good quality houses for first time buyers would breathe life into these areas. The covid issue has proved that green spaces are need for people's well being, if you build on them you will then have a lot more mental health issues which funding will be required for. Large executive developments, are short sighted and are more about filling the council's account.
