| For our mental health we need green open spaces in which to walk, enjoy fresh air and interact with the rich natural resources we have on our doorstep. This is a haven of tranquility between heavily populated areas. Traffic congestion, strain on national health and other facilities are at breaking point already without further development of thousands of houses and the resulting chaos it will cause. I have recently moved to the area and my walks in this lovely spot have been a lifesaver. Once this natural beauty has disappeared it can never return. We need to be using our farmland to remain self sufficient. The war in Ukraine has taught us how dangerous it is to rely upon external forces. | |
