Type of comment: An objection
Does the theory surrounding retrospective planning permission basically mean people can do what they want and worry about the consequences (if any) at a later date? Whilst we have no objection to a pigeon coop being at the the far end of their field a reasonable distance nor do we object to anybody pursuing their hobby. Our objection is that people come and go at all hours, day and night and stay over in the caravan on site which we were told initially was for them to be able to stay out of the cold and have a cup of coffee. not only creating a disturbance of the peaceful surrounding but also why does a pigeon coop necessitate staying all night and having a great big 40ft container (amongst other storage facilities) and what do they use as clean and fresh water and a toilet? Noise is created as a result - they use a generator and we feel this is outside of what should be considered normal weekly working activity. We live here. Naturally we are fair people and want to live our lives in peace. We fully understand the desire to utilise their property and to enjoy their hobby. However, we moved here to fulfil the need for peace, tranquillity and pay our taxes to live here accordingly. We would be happy for them to have their pigeon house, providing it is kept the farthest distance from along with all their storage and refreshment facilities and that their activities on site could be limited in terms of their presence / occupation / noise to between Monday-Friday 8am-5pm
