Hello Richard

I see that further plans have been submitted to the planning portal regarding this development at Oddfellows Street in Scholes.

While the developers have addressed the concerns around access for the bin lorries no consideration has been made for access to the site for hgv's during construction. As has been stated in numerous neighbour representations access is difficult and limited on the existing roads and if the developers were to do this properly they would provide an entrance straight from Scholes Lane at the southern end of the plot and not use Oddfellows or Salisbury Road at all.

Also nothing has been said about the adoption of Oddfellows Street and I believe that the residents are against this. Are the developers just planning update the road anyway?

It's about time we had some proper information about this site. It's very bad form, on the developers part, not to have contacted the local residents about their intentions. It's not just a couple of houses, it doubles the number of houses and therefore amount of traffic in this area.

Yours
