The proposed development, on what was until recently green belt land, is a threat to the adjacent woodland. It is proposed to build right up the edge of Lepton Great Woods, which is an important woodland and which is both a great local amenity and an ecologically important place. There are many trees and shrubs which support a variety of wildlife. The wildlife depends not only on the woods themselves but also on the meadowland adjacent to the woods. Building right up to the edge of the woods would have a detrimental effect of the ecology of the site. Additionally the influx of many people (and their pets) so close to the woods would ultimately risk further damage to the valuable woodland.
