Parking at the end of Longley Road is ridiculous since the vets opened. The staff seem to abandon their cars next the the roundabout, peoples drives and park wherever they feel like. As the vets has a large car park already, this seems unnecessary and is making a busy road and an already dangerous junction even worse. The application seems to suggest that the vets would be able to deal with more customers, so although there is no loss of parking spaces, it does seem likely that pressure on parking will increase. They application should include some sort of permit system or double yellow lines around the junction of Somerset rd and Longley rd.
