After seeing the plans amended again, I object to the basement frosted window 'for fire escape use only' as this is facing into neighbours property at ground level which will cause an invasion of privacy. There are no reasons why the owner could not put a window on other walls of the property which would on-look their own land. Whether this window is frosted or not it does not want to be on looking into neighbours garden, the neighbours garden is not for their fire escape use and is private property, the owner needs to use other external walls for this window that does not intrude with neighbours land or garden. The permission for the basement bedroom has not been approved but the work has already been completed.
