Lots of people in Slaithwaite voted on the previous planning application on the basis that parking would be improved and easy access to globe mill would be created from the canal side of the building. I dont think it's fair that developers are then able to back out of their improvement promises. Parking is something of a nightmare now. Walking down Bridge Street is a dangerous endeavour - cars parked solidly, road surface riddled with potholes. It must be hellish for residents. Access from the village involves a lengthy walk on an often puddley towpath, having navigated the canal bridge by the former public toilets. In winter darkness this can be quite intimidating. I think the developers should be held to their improvement commitments.
