I have reviewed the plans.when we were building the new development of 385 new hey road we were made to put up a sound barrier fence to stop the noise coming from the filling station. Even with the fence and the conifer boundary there is a lot of noise coming from the petrol station. The main noise is from the car wash and also the car wash bay. The proposed new development will bring more customers and more noise to our dwelling especially the garden areas on the side of where the ev bays will be. The Ev bays are available 24 hours a day which will also bring further noise and could be an issue in the evening. When our development was made we were made to put up sound close board fencing. I have not seen any sound board fencing being proposed to this new development only a small wall infront of the ev bays. I would like the same regulations to be implemented to this development to shield any noise not just from the car wash and other new installations but from noise from customers there cars and general noise from a busy forecourt. I have seen on the plans a brick wall being built but would like either the wall to be built all the way along the boundary line or a sound proof fence to be installed. Kind regards
