My main concern is the planned extension will be joining and also built on top of part of my house and there will have to be major changes and disruption to the outside of my outhouse. At times whilst the extension is being built my outhouse will be left open and not secure, there will also need to be walls dropped and my outhouse roof removed and rebuilt probably during the winter months. This will be noisy and cause disturbance and I have two children so this concerns me. I am also concerned that my house will not be left in the same condition or an improved condition after the extension being built, should financial change result in the extension not being completed this may not be the case. I could end up with my outhouse and utility room without a roof or walls not rebuilt. The dormer being built will directly overlook my back garden so will intrude on my families privacy. The main extension will be built alot closer to my house than before so with the extension there will be alot less light coming into the right hand side of my house and the windows will be much closer which will result in me loosing alot of privacy I have now. Also the extension will not fit in with the street scene, should this extension go ahead it will make our houses look more like terraces rather than semi detached houses as the large space between the houses will be lost. Another concern is that on the planning application I cannot see any dimensions of the extension, so should this be approved and go ahead what is the limit of the size of the extension to be built? Also last note there has been no 3rd party wall agreement put in place by the applicant or agreed to by myself.
