Living on Penistone Road for 38 years, I have seen traffic levels increase substantially. It is not uncommon to have to wait for 30 or more vehicles to pass along Penistone Road before being able to join it - all at times of the day. Hence the "new" traffic lights by the Swan for access to and from Highburton. How on earth can Penistone Road cope with more adjoining traffic? And from an already difficult junction both for sight lines and narrowness from Storthes Hall Lane. If this junction were to be redesigned my objection would be withdrawn but this would be extremely expensive and is not included in the planning proposals. For this reason alone, the development CANNOT go ahead. Furthermore, the drainage on Storthes Hall lane has been long neglected and the road surface itself much deteriorated - the development would add pressure to already woefully neglected infrastructure. In the current situation and with the current proposals, a development of this size is a disaster in the making.
