The planning application for demolition of building and erection of one dwelling which I have viewed on the Kirklees website is quite astonishing. I don't mind the demolition of the existing building, but for it to be replaced by a multi-storey building is completely out of character with the surroundings. The address is Castle Hill, Gomersal. This new building would be quite high up, as the address shows. It would be very imposing on the low buildings and dwellings in any direction. Also, why would the owners of Castle Hill House build a high building right next to them to take away their own view? What is going to be their next step? The application seems to be completely unreasonable from anyone's angle.
