My daughter attends Wellhouse school and I work in slaithwaite so travel that section of road everyday. My objection is mainly relating to effect this will have on an already busy road with limited parking. Currently quite often teachers, parents as well as residents park on this section of the road. This area is tricky at the best of times due to cars having to give way at either side. I fear loosing some of this space will cause people to park further down and closer to the bend in the road making visibility to give even more difficult than it is currently. During school times this area can be extremely busy especially if there are road works in other areas diverting traffic this way. I have witnessed vans and larger vehicles struggling to get through due to a build up of traffic. If planning should go ahead I think some traffic system should be put in place ie speed humps or a give way system. This however may ease the passing of traffic but won't stop the problem of parking in general. Considering this is so close to a school we should consider the safety of the children and the effect this will have on the local residents.
