I wish to object, once again!! to this ill considered development as a whole, not just about the many attempts to alter the plan bit by bit until the developers are satisfied. The objections put forward by concerned people, are still all relevant, the development is far too big, it's size is what causes all the issues. Would it not make more sense to plan for smaller developments, spread across the area on the many available sites that do not impact on just one area.
