It is really exciting that Oi have got a restaurant premises in Marsden because their food is excellent and unusual for the area. I believe it will bring visitors to Marsden because it is something different and it offers another dining option for local people. It makes sense for a cafe/restaurant to be open in the evening and serve alcohol. Most people don't want to eat dinner before 6 when the current licence ends. It is also not possible for many people to visit in the day time due to work, childcare etc so it needs to be open in the evening to reach all of its potential customers. I visited their previous premises and their stall at a market but will struggle to visit until they can open in the evening. There are several other pubs and food venues on Peel Street that are open in the evening already and host events such as open mic nights which would generate more noise than another cafe/restaurant. I think what Oi offers is of real benefit to the village and so I hope they are permitted to open in the evening.
