My daughter has been attending this childminders since she was 5 months old she is now almost 15 months, she attends 3 days per week due to me working close by, this childminders has been an asset to my daughter's development. She has created strong bonds with other children who attend, if the business was not able to continue it would not only have a negative effect on my daughter emotionally but also on myself with my job, I had to return to work after 5 months I was lucky enough to be accepted a place at this childminders as there were very limited availability within this area. This would cause a lot of disruption to my work schedule and could potentially mean being out of work until we found a resolve. I have had countless interactions with the staff at sticks and stones and I can confidentially say they are amazing caring and thoughtful workers, it would be an absolute loss to lose this childminders not only for myself and my daughter but also for all of the other children who attend. Please take my thoughts and comments into consideration, especially during such a hard financial time for parents in the current economy. Thank you.
