I object to this change of an old bank to a fast food restaurant:
1. Traffic and highway concerns - It will generate traffic that will have nowhere to park/ will block the fire station given the location of the building - domino's relies heavily on delivery apps to deliver its food - traffic alone from these drivers/ riders will cause problems on an already very busy road, a fire station next door to obstruct and no clear alternative place to park. Any such parking (and the delivery drivers will abandon their cars as near to the venue as they can) will cause obstructions at what is already a very busy junction. This is a key pedestrian path and cars will no doubt obstruct this by parking on the pavement given lack of room on the highway for parking with the hgv and buses that need to pass.
2. Noise and odour etc - take away venue producing excess food odours and rubbish with access to the building on the main high street - pollution also from excess traffic including what will no doubt be many delivery app drivers/ bikes
3. Character of the area - we already have a number of local takeaways - we do not need another take away with illuminated signage on our high street, coupled with the fact this will draw a larger number of delivery app drivers/ riders given its online presence etc
4. Impact on the neighbouring houses in terms of traffic, noise and pollution
