Location

Huddersfield is the principal town, and administrative centre, of the metropolitan borough of Kirklees, West Yorkshire. The town, with a population of 141,692 (ONS 2021 Census), is located just east of the Pennines, approximately 2.5 miles from the M62 motorway, 9 miles south of Bradford, 13 miles south-west of Leeds and 22 miles north-east of Manchester.

The town's transport links are good, with Junctions 23, 24 and 25 of the M62 motorway approximately 3, 2.5 and 4 miles, respectively, from central Huddersfield, whilst Junction 38 of the M1 motorway is approximately 10 miles to east. The town's public transport links are excellent, particularly in terms of rail, with Huddersfield being on the main railway line between Leeds and Manchester, soon to be boosted further by the 'Transpennine Route Upgrade', currently underway.

The property is prominently located in the town centre, to the corner of John William Street and Brook Street, with extensive frontages both elevations, in a predominantly commercial area, a short distance east of St. George's Square and the Grade I Listed Huddersfield Railway Station, and with the University of Huddersfield's groundbreaking new 'National Health Innovation Campus' approximately 300 metres to the west.
