Although there may already be mosques in the wider area, but for many local Muslim, especially elderly people and families without cars, getting to those places isn't always easy. With an onsite car park, I'm sure there wouldn't be much of an issue to our local residents. It is important to note that a mosque is far more than just a place of worship. It serves as a centre for education, community development, pastoral care, and charitable outreach. In that sense, the proposed use aligns closely with the original function of the village hall as a community space. Moreover, several individuals involved in this initiative have a strong and proven track record of supporting young people through educational and youth engagement programmes. This gives confidence that the building will continue to host activities that benefit the wider community, including those of different faiths or none. While the building's formal designation may change, its spirit and social utility as a hub for local development will remain.
