Honley is already struggling with the amount of people and traffic in the village (or small town its that big already!). The doctors are struggling, the schools are struggling, the dentists are struggling. They are all struggling due to the high demand on them due to the numver of houses that have already been built in the area in the last 25 years! Honley was supposedly on a "green belt" area. I think kirklees council have forgotten this and are being money blinded. The amount of traffic on what is now already a busy village main road, is just going to be busier. But dont forget there is very little parking in Honley so people dont stop to pay thd local businesses a visit.
