The development seems to have found the need for expensive extra work and are trying to save money on safety issues such as removing a proposed footpath and crossing on Gynn Lane. The internal roads drains and woodland are not to be adopted and refuse collection at a single site all present potential and serious issues for the future. Again proposing to culvert the stream rather than bridge it increases the chances of flooding that happens at the end of Gynn Lane and the main road. The woodland seems not to be loosing nests as over 20 can be seen being constructed at the moment. There is not a solution for drainage and Yorkshire water is unable to control sewer spills on to Woodroyd/Gynn lane. The final issue is that yet again agricultural land is being used at a time when the need for food production is increasing even on what may be marginal land.
