Neither the Applicant or the Council can deny that the site and its surrounds are problematic.

The Council has been provided with a variety of reasons for turning down the application. These include serious technical issues identified by knowledgeable residents and those who have long experience of the land and its characteristics.

Numerous complainants/objectors have drawn attention to the obvious limitations and dangers of Gynn Lane in the context of traffic usage. If the proposed development goes ahead these will become even more apparent.

It is to be hoped the Council will take account of the risk factors and potential consequences and reject the application.

But if the Council approves the application, then residents (and those who provide services to them) will be subjected to many months of disruption and inconvenience as groundworks take place. The delivery of heavy plant and materials to the site would make this inevitable.

If complaints were then made about this, would the Council take the stance: ‘it is your problem now; cope with it’

That would be inflammatory!
