The development will increase air pollution during both the construction phase and afterwards with significantly more cars using the area. My biggest concern, however, is the asbestos which is buried on the land which the planning is proposed for, that I was personally told about by the late landowner. He admitted to myself and others that he had buried the asbestos removed from his loft in his garden, assuring us that it would not pose a risk because it would never be disturbed as he planned to build over it (which he did when he erected a stable block). With demolition now planned, that asbestos will be unearthed, releasing fibres into the air right next to my home. This is a very real and serious health risk to me, my family, and my neighbours, and it must not be ignored.
