Good morning Hazel,

I've been back out to site to check on the replanting.

I'm still going through the decision notes to work out what is required against what has been done, but I should be able to update you later today.

In the meantime, I have attached a photo of T30 which is dead. It was in very poor condition when I did my survey, and that is shown in the data tables, but I did mistakenly give it the wrong colour on my drawing where it was shown as a category B.

Kind regards,

James Royston
