My main objection is the buffer between this development and the ancient woodland. Its ridiculous to suggest that 15m is sufficient. Whist the 15m protects the roots, which should be standard for any preserved tree, it goes absolutely no where to actually PROTECTING the tree itself. A larger buffer would ensure that the biodiversity of the woodland was protected more. The Woodland Trust advocates for a 50-meter buffer as a precautionary measure to protect ancient woodland from potential damage. Yes we need to develop areas, and in my opinion Green Belts should never be considered, but we absolutely must protect trees and woodland!
