Huddersfield old market is one of the few architectural gems that we have in our town. I have attended various events there over the last seventy years. (I am eighty five) I attend the Saturday market every week and always attend the Autojumbles, often having a stall there myself. These events are a godsend to classic car enthusiasts like myself and any alterations to the market that would limit or curtail them would cause a huge amount of dissapointment. All that apart, the market building is such a treasure and it would be sacrilege to alter it in any way. Posterity and the regular users of the market would find any alterations hard to forgive.
