The town centre economy is really struggling currently. I really hope the cultural heart plans turn it around but this will take years. The second hand market (and fantastic veg stall) is one bright part and has been so busy and interesting and enjoyable to visit recently while the rest of town is suffering. It was one of my favourite things in the town when I came here 30 odd years ago and still is. While much retail has gone online, people still love markets. The secondhand market is seriously one of the best things in the centre and it has been lovely seeing it busy again.
