I have lived in Shepley, a lovely village for 14 months and on the two occasions I have needed a GP appointment I have been unable to see a doctor but was offered an appointment with a nurse practitioner! If you allow all these new homes to be built, make this village any larger there won't even be appointments for a nurse practitioner! I am a retired medical professional and when people are ill they are vulnerable and concerned about if they will be able to be seen by their local doctor. Do you really feel with a health centre full to bursting that adding to this pressure is acceptable not only for the Shepley residents but those who would be new Shepley residents?
