I am for the new houses been built in upper cumberworth. I was born and raised in upper cumberworth, when I was young and at the first school most of the children was from cumberworth and we all walked there, now kids have to come from all over to try keep the school operating and open as the examiner publishes not that long ago how one local school may have to close as there's not enough children. As there's none of my friends that can afford to live in cumberworth we have all moved out of the village but we still drink in the local pub which once again is up for let as very few of the people that live in the village use the local amenities. The new homes will bring new people to the village that could keep the only pub in the village going. There is a train station 20 minutes walk down the road so public transport to get around easy, and plenty of local shops and restaurants not to far out of the village that would have more visitors buying and eating locally. People saying about all the cars, I can imagine a lot of people like myself that would love to move back to cumberworth probably pass the field on the way to and from work so traffic would not rise that much. Overall I think this would be good for cumberworth and keep the local amenities going but also give that old village feel back seeing kids out playing and walking to school.
