Application states: "The windows replicate the originals in design, materials and recessing". Listing states: "Mid to late C18. Pair of cottages, part of row. Hammer dressed stone part rendered and painted. Pitched stone slate roof (bitumen covered). Two storeys. South East elevation: Ground floor: two doorways with large lintel; one five-light stone mullioned window (recessed) (with central sash), one three-light stone mullioned window (recessed). First floor: one two-light stone mullioned window (recessed); one three-light stone mullioned window (recessed); one four-light stone mullioned window (recessed)."There was no such thing as uPVC in the late 1700 and it appears that the building didn't have uPVC windows when it was listed. Neither do the replacements have sashes, nor are they properly recessed. These frames should be removed and replaced with timber.
