1.Highway Safety. I travel past this field several times a day, and it is very rarely used by the farmer as a junction to the main road. This is fortunate as it has very bad visibility from both sides, and the road is a fast road and this is a particularly narrow part of the road. 2. The loss of grazing land and natural environment. This land is currently used by sheep, and so I would have classed it as Green Belt. I feel if this field is given permission then the neighbouring fields (which have exactly the same current usage) could also be given permission to build, and this would obliterate the countryside as it been for many hundreds of years. 3. Detrimental affect on animals and landscape. At the moment this field is used by sheep and cows, and so they would need to find other grazing land. Obviously wild animals use this space too, we have an abundance of pheasants, rabbits, hares in the area, this would affect their habitat.
