I really don't understand why having a small local mosque should be seen as such a problem when it would benefit so many people living nearby. At the moment people from this side of Huddersfield have to travel to other areas just to attend prayers. That means more cars on the roads and more unnecessary journeys. Surely having somewhere within walking distance is a better option for the residents of Moldgreen and Dalton? I completely agree that people should park properly and respect local residents. Nobody should be blocking driveways or causing an obstruction, and the centre should make sure this is enforced. But parking concerns should be dealt with through proper management rather than being used as a reason to lose a much needed facility altogether. I support Al-Hira, this is not some mega project to be alarmed over and I hope common sense prevails.
