| On the whole, we think the extension will be a positive addition to the property, providing it is in keeping with the traditional look of the current house. However, as the attached house to this property, we feel concerned with loss of privacy due to the balcony on the rear extension. The balcony will extend several meters further out from the houses, allowing views into our rear and side garden. We do appreciate that a balcony would be a wonderful feature to have, so could plans perhaps be amended to an inset balcony or with a solid partioning wall on the side of the balcony that faces our house? | |
