This building has an important place in our national history. Demolishing this pub would destroy yet another link to the Luddites, who met at this building in April 1812, to attack the nearby Rawfolds' Mill. Kirklees should be proud of the Luddites and they should be celebrated. I urge Kirklees Council to preserve the last few physical links to the Luddites. This comment may be futile, as Luddism ultimately was, but the memory and the message of Luddites endures; their actions continue to inspire us to fight for a fairer world.
